Abstract: This article discusses current issues of fundamental reforms that have been implemented in our society's life.

Keywords: Reforms, society, strategy, structure.

Up to now, fundamental reforms have been implemented in all spheres in the process of renewing society's life in our country. Building a renewed civil society and a legal state in the country was announced as the main strategic ultimate goal. As can be seen from the changes in recent years, the reforms to build a new society are deepening, they are covering all directions and various aspects of the construction of a developed state and civil society.

These issues have been comprehensively and deeply analyzed by the Decree of President Shavkat Mirziyoyev dated February 7, 2017 "On the Strategy of Actions for the Development of the Republic of Uzbekistan in 2017-2021", which approved the Strategy of Actions, setting strategic goals and tasks related to the socio-economic, political and spiritual life of our country. [1] The essence and main directions of this strategy indicate that, along with all spheres of the life of our society, the attention to the factors of forming a high level of national pride among citizens is increasing.

In the process of building a new Uzbekistan, the expansion of active participation of citizens in the activities of institutions and structures of the state management system is of great importance. Also, the process of liberalization and decentralization of government by the state authorities, apart from allowing to building of a new type of society, creates comprehensive conditions for strengthening the sense of national pride in citizens and prepares a thorough ground for the manifestation of each person's identity.

In such conditions, the organization of administration based on the principles of justice and a sense of responsibility becomes more important as one of the main conditions for the formation of a sense of national pride. Instead, a growing sense of national pride helps citizens realize greater responsibility.

That is why special attention was paid to the development and strengthening of the sense of national pride in all layers of the population during the period of independence. These processes became the basis of reforms related to building a civil society and a legal state. Also, the reforms in the construction of civil society began to have a significant impact on the content of the sense of national pride, and many universal values began to enter its essence system.

It is no coincidence that in the period of independence, the issue of increasing the sense of national pride has been raised to the level of one of the most urgent tasks, and important attention has been paid to the implementation of measures to solve it. At the same time, during this period, the legal foundations for the formation of a sense of national pride were also developed. Certain institutional changes were made during the implementation of the Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan and other legal regulations. Finding solutions to the problem of effective formation and improvement of the sense of national pride in laws and various regulations has been the constant focus of reforms in this area.

It is no secret that in the country, attention is being paid to the implementation of measures aimed at further increasing the national pride of the population, which necessitates the implementation of reforms on the liberalization of management in order to ensure the effective functioning of the structures of state bodies and civil institutions. In this regard, increasing the responsibility of employees of regional governments, ministries and other bodies is the priority of these reforms, and special attention is paid to improving its organizational, legislative and control mechanisms.

Of course, the world experience has proven that the issue of increasing the sense of national pride is not an area that can be expressed quickly in the period of democratic reforms. Some scientists have put forward suggestions that it can give the expected results if it is implemented by creating and improving the legal basis of the activity in this regard. It is known that in the current period, a superficial approach to the issue of understanding the essence of the system of national pride and its socio-political characteristics and tasks in the life of the society will not bear fruit, and it will not even be possible to move to new forms and methods of improving this area. For this reason, it is important to develop scientific research on this issue, to form practical measures and mechanisms to increase the responsibility of researchers in accordance with them.

In general, all such works carried out in the spiritual-educational sphere are undoubtedly aimed at the important issue of the members of our society having independent and appropriate thinking, learning to think independently, and growing self-confidence. Today, combining the process of improving the system of national pride with activities aimed at ensuring the dynamics of spiritual life changes serves to strengthen the foundations of changes in this regard.

So, it is clear that the process of forming a sense of national pride in the current period is directly related to active democratic reforms and modernization of the country, not only social, economic, political changes, but also spiritual, educational and creative spheres. In addition, the activation of democratic reforms increased the state's attention to the spheres of spirituality, enlightenment, and artistic creativity, and changes in this regard were considered as factors that have a great impact on the formation of a sense of national pride. Accordingly, the type and number of mass media are increasing, publishing houses, newspapers and magazines are increasing.

At the moment, attention is being paid to the improvement of new and modern structures that represent the socio-political updates corresponding to these changes, and to strengthening the organizational, economic and social foundations of the sense of national pride. In such a dynamic process in many spheres of society's life, not only at the social level, but also at the personal level, spiritual maturity and the sense of national pride are becoming important.
